| CURRICULUM

The POLLEN Jean Monnet Module's main scope is excellence-in-teaching in EU studies. It aims to equip students and professionals with a rigorous knowledge of sensitive and topical environmental challenges with an overarching emphasis on:

- EU ENVIRONMENTAL LAW AND EU IN MULTILATERAL NEGOTIATIONS
- EU CLIMATE CHANGE AND ENERGY GOVERNANCE
- EU WASTE MANAGEMENT, CHEMICALS AND NANOTECHNOLOGIES
- BIODIVERSITY, AGRICULTURE, FOOD & TRADE

This programme combines traditional with interactive learning settings. While lectures offer theoretical and analytical tools to understand the main legal, political and economic issues of environmental protection, the conferences-debates provide "case studies" and build a lively discussion between practitioners and participants.

New pedagogical activities such as an Active Learning Forum and a training session are developed. At the end of the programme, participants will be asked to present a short talk and to submit a policy brief.

| ORGANISATION

POLLEN Jean Monnet Module is organised by the Institute for European Studies (IES) in partnership with the Research Centre in Political Science (CReSPo) both at Université Saint-Louis – Bruxelles (USL-B) in Brussels, Belgium.

Since its founding in 2007, the IES has quite naturally taken up its position as an institution with three missions, i.e., education, research, and training. True to the tradition of interdisciplinarity that characterises USL-B, the Institute offers its students an environment that blends the approaches specific to law, economics, political science, history and philosophy.

The CReSPo was founded in 2001 and it has been developing an acknowledged expertise in the analysis of public action. Its research activities stretched in many fields such as the Europeanisation of public policies, citizenship's participation, international relations, peacebuilding and social policies.

The Jean Monnet Academic and Scientific Coordinator is Amandine ORSINI: M.A. in Horticulture and Landscaping at ENSHAP France, M.A. in Comparative Politics and International Relations and Ph.D. in Political Science at Sciences Po Bordeaux.
