

Question posed by Prof. Amandine Orsini:

“Mr. Secretary General, as you know the diversity of identities is important for political representation. What explains the fact that a woman has never been elected as UN Secretary General so far and do you see perspectives towards such a configuration for the forthcoming election of your successor?”

Question posed by Denise Badran:

“Mr. Secretary General, during your term, the UN Youth Office has been put in place and recently you established the Youth Advisory Group on Climate Change. However, given that young people are often marginalised in politics, how can they convince world leaders to take urgent action on, among others, the triple environmental crisis?”
